The End of Covid

Jesus Christ: Yesterday, Today, and Forever ~

"Ding dong, the witch is dead. The wicked witch is dead . . ." Those are the words from a song from the Wizard of Oz, and that's how I feel about the end of the covid pandemic. It has been a long two years since we closed everything down and went through three waves of the virus. At last, the masks have come off, the signs have come down, and we can return to being human – phew! I feel as if some great moment has come for the world, as if a world war has ended, and we need a ticker tape parade and public events to mark the occasion – but we aren't – how awful. This is a moment to mourn the dead and grieve what has been lost; to celebrate the end of a tyranny that has ruled the world for two years, and the return of humanity.

It is also a time to honestly assess what we did right and what we did wrong. I hope that our world leaders will learn from this and in the future, not over react, quarantine the at risk while letting everyone else go on with their lives, stop calling people who have been vaccinated "immune" when more resistant is the best we can hope for, count those who have had the virus as being as resistant as those who have been vaccinated, and stop with the constant fear mongering. Unfortunately, there will be more pandemics to come (and deadlier), so we want to learn from our mistakes from this one, so as to handle the next one so much better. Keep a box of masks in a closet somewhere.

Returning to 'normal' includes returning to Mass and the Church. For most of us, we have returned or never left. For many though, on-line Masses became a life line for the immune compromised, the frightened, or sadly – lazy. I say that last one confidently as many people have confessed it to me. But at least these people watched Mass on-line, so many other Catholics don't even do that.

One of the fallouts from the pandemic is the loss of a certain percentage of Mass goers. We don't know what that percentage is yet, as people are still drifting back. Many people, once they got used to not going to Mass, found they didn't want to return. For these Catholics, their faith must have already been weak when the pandemic struck. Hopefully they'll come back in time. What this means for the rest of us, is that the Church is a little smaller now, and a little more committed. A good place to rebuild from.

I have attached below some cut outs from the Seattle Archdiocese's website about reasons to physically return to Mass. The people reading this pastor's column don't need this per-se, yet the below points might help you to evangelize those Catholics you know who don't attend Mass, or watch it on-line when they could be coming in person.

May God Bless You,

Fr. Thomas Nathe

Taken from the Archdiocese of Seattle website.

Why is physically showing up to Mass so important?

We are called to attend Mass in person, to enter into God's sacred space to physically encounter the Lord in an extraordinary way, entering into the liturgy, worshiping God in community with others.

“Blessed are those who dwell in your house! They never cease to praise you.” - Psalm 84

"For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." - Matthew 18:20

"And let us consider how to arouse one another to charity and good works; not forsaking our assembly as is the custom of some, but exhorting one another, and this all the more as you see the Day drawing near." - Hebrews 10:24-25

“We too are gathered round the table of the Lord, the table of the Eucharistic sacrifice, in which he once again gives us his Body and makes present the one sacrifice of the Cross. It is in listening to his word, in nourishing ourselves with his Body and his Blood that he moves us on from being a multitude to being a community, from anonymity to communion. The Eucharist is the sacrament of communion that brings us out of individualism so that we may follow him together, living out our faith in him.” - Pope Francis, May 30, 2013

“Just as the term ‘Church’ refers to the living temple, God's People, the term ‘church’ also has been used to describe "the building in which the Christian community gathers to hear the word of God, to pray together, to receive the sacraments, and celebrate the Eucharist." - Built of Living Stones, guidelines of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, #16

“The church is the proper place for the liturgical prayer of the parish community, especially the celebration of the Eucharist on Sunday. It is also the privileged place for adoration of the Blessed Sacrament and reservation of the Eucharist for Communion for the sick. Whenever communities have built houses for worship, the design of the building has been of critical importance. Churches are never ‘simply gathering spaces but signify and make visible the Church living in [a particular] place, the dwelling of God’ among us, now ‘reconciled and united in Christ.’ As such, the building itself becomes ‘a sign of the pilgrim Church on earth and reflects the Church dwelling in heaven.’ Every church building is a gathering place for the assembly, a resting place, a place of encounter with God, as well as a point of departure on the Church's unfinished journey toward the reign of God.” - Built of Living Stones, #17
