Catholic Persecution – Alive and Well

Jesus Christ: Yesterday, Today, and Forever ~

In our first reading at Mass today we heard about the infamous cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. They were two cities in ancient Israel that gave themselves over to sexual sins (know any countries like that?). We get the words sodomy and sodomitical, or unnatural sexual acts, from the ancient city of Sodom. God destroyed them with fire and brimstone for their sins—a real warning for us today. It wasn't just that the cities inhabitants thought that having sex with men was just great, it's that they insisted that everyone participate—even the angels that God rescued Lot and his family. That whole participation thing should sound familiar with our contemporary world-LGBTQ+ and abortion indoctrination/shaming phenomenon. There's nothing that says that what God did to Sodom and Gomorrah won't happen in this country. God is not a hypocrite, He plays no favorites. Lest anyone think that the world's anti-God agenda isn't true, or at least a cause for concern, I've attached an article below that refutes the lie.

May Almighty God Bless You,

Fr. Thomas Nathe

Four priests, one religious sister murdered in one week

<https://cruxnow.com/church-in-africa/2022/06/four-priests-one-religious-sister-murdered-in-one-week>

By Inés San Martín

Jun 28, 2022

ROME – The past seven days were among the deadliest for Catholic priests and religious in recent years, with one violent murder every 33 hours. Just last Wednesday, June 22, Pope Francis condemned that week's killing of two Jesuit priests in Mexico. By Sunday, June 26, the pontiff was once again lamenting the death of a religious, this time at the end of his weekly Angelus: Sister Luisa dell'Orto, a Little Sister of the Gospel of Saint Charles de Foucauld, was killed Saturday in Port-au-Prince, the capital of Haiti. In between those murders, two more took place in Nigeria. The news of the two separate incidents killing two priests, however, broke after the pope's last public appearance.

Nigeria loses two priests

On Saturday, June 25, Father Vitus Borogo was murdered in Kaduna State, the same region where two churches were attacked a week earlier. The murderers are believed to be members of the Islamic terrorist organization Boko Haram. The 50-year-old priest served as the chairman of the Nigerian Catholic Diocesan Priests' Association. He was murdered at a farm, during what the chancellor of the diocese defined as a "raid by terrorists."

On Sunday, June 26, Father Christopher Odiya was murdered after being kidnapped from the Diocese of Auchi, Edo State, in the southern region of Nigeria. He had been abducted on his way to Sunday Mass at St. Michael Catholic Church Ikabigdo. He was 41 and ordained a priest in 2012.

On Sunday, Bishop Matthew Kukah, of the diocese of Sokoto, complained that one of his priests and a religious sister who were kidnapped three weeks ago remain missing, and the people who took them are negotiating a ransom for almost half a million dollars. “We are negotiating with the kidnappers as I’m talking because I don’t know how else to get back my priest,” he said.

Kukah noted that members of his family have been kidnapped and another one of his priests was killed by kidnappers, as was a seminarian. “Somehow we like to pretend we have a government,” he said. “Of course, we have the apparatus of government, we have the scaffolding, but this scaffolding is important because people can see access to and appropriate resources of the state.”

An Italian religious sister murdered in Haiti

Sister Lucia Dell’Orto was murdered by three armed men on June 25 in the Haitian capital, Port-au-Prince, where she lived for the past 20 years. She was shot by three armed men and left in the street to die. “It seems it was not a robbery or even a kidnapping attempt, but one of the many cases of absurd violence that the proliferation of weapons allows. Luisa had no enemies,” Father Elder Maurice Hyppolite, a Salesian priest and lecturer on the Caribbean island, told the Italian newspaper Corriere dell Sera.

“She was aware that something might happen; even in her last letter she said that the situation was very difficult,” her sister Maria Adele told the local newspaper in the Italian town of Lomagna, north of Milan, where they grew up.

The religious sister was so loved in her home town that even the city council released a statement, saying that Lomagna is “united in shock, dismay, and non-acceptance, which almost brings us to a movement of rebellion.”

In the last letter she sent to Italy to those who founded her charitable endeavors in Haiti, Dall’Orto wrote that though some would consider her crazy for risking her life by staying in a place so marred by violence, she remains because “we cannot keep silent about what we have seen and heard. Being able to count on someone is essential to living.”

Two Jesuits murdered in Mexico

Last week saw the death of two Jesuit priests, Father Javier Campos and Father Joaquin Mora, in Mexico, a crime that brought swift condemnation from Pope Francis.

Throughout the week, hundreds of soldiers scoured the mountains of Mexico’s Sierra Tarahumara looking for a local Sinaloa cartel boss accused of killing the two elderly Jesuits along with a tour guide.

The lives and deaths of Campos and Mora not only illustrate the carnage their country is enduring, but also one of its least understood aspects: Despite belonging to an overwhelming statistical majority, Christians in Colombia who stand up to the violence are remarkably at risk. They face danger not for their religious beliefs, but for preaching against the drug trade and the killing in ways that infuriate both gangs and left- and right-wing paramilitaries.

As the bishops put it in a statement released June 23, three days after the murder, violence in Mexico has been “disrupting the daily life of our entire society, affecting productive activities in cities and the countryside, exerting pressure with extortion against those who work honestly in markets, schools and small businesses, along with medium and large companies. [Criminals] have taken over the streets, neighborhoods and entire towns, as well as roads and highways.”

Though not targeted for their faith, but for the influence of their ministry in keeping their “customers” off the streets, drug cartels have killed between 45 and 50 priests in the last 15 years. Most were caught in the crossfire or refused to perform sacramental services such as baptisms or weddings for drug lords.

NATURAL FAMILY PLANNING

Natural Family Planning (NFP) or Fertility Awareness Methods (FAM) are names for the many methods of identifying the different phases of a woman's cycle of fertility.

Couples learn a method to gather and interpret data that, when combined with prayer and good communication, can help them better discern how God's calling them to be generous in their marriage.

NFP isn't birth control

Birth control changes the way a woman's body works, and contraception puts a barrier between a husband and wife. NFP does neither! NFP teaches a woman to observe what's happening in her body and how to interpret it. The couple decides what to do with that information. It's scientific!

The best things in life require commitment

Some methods are easy, while others need more commitment. But all the best things in life require commitment, dedication, and perseverance. You can do it - you were made for greatness, and greatness doesn't come to the lazy!

NFP is about more than pregnancy

Observing and identifying the different phases of a woman's fertility cycle gives her important information about her health. Typically, women experience four different phases in her cycle of fertility. Hormones play a huge role in overall health, and using an NFP method can help a woman identify any problems. "Knowledge is power," and many women find NFP empowering!

There are many ways to do NFP

There's no one method of NFP - and no one method that's the right fit for every couple! Each method uses either descriptive data (color, texture, etc) or numerical data (taking your temperature, etc), or both in order to identify the beginning and ending of each phase of her cycle. Some methods track one sign, others track three or four! If one method doesn't work well for you, there's another one that will!

What are some of the different NFP methods?

Billings Ovulation Method

Billings is a tried-and-true method that's been around since the 1950s (but has been updated since then!), so it can be easier to find an instructor. Billings is a descriptive method.

Especially great for: people who want a no-cost (after training) method, want to only track one sign of fertility. It's also a zero-waste method.

May not be good for: those who have trouble tracking the sign Billings uses.

<https://www.billings.life/en/>

Creighton Method

Creighton is the method favored by the NaPro Institute, which does cutting-edge fertility research using methods in harmony with Catholic teaching. Creighton is a descriptive method.

Especially great for: people who may have underlying fertility issues, people who want a low or no-cost method.

May not be good for: those who have trouble tracking the sign Creighton uses

<https://creightonmodel.com/>

Sympto-Thermal Methods (STM)

These methods track descriptive signs as well as your waking temperature reading with a special thermometer.

Especially great for: people who want the extra security of cross-referencing multiple signs of fertility

May not be good for: people who can't get at least 4 hours of uninterrupted sleep, those who forget to take their temperature every time you wake up for your day. Two organizations that teach STM are:

Couple-to-Couple League: <https://ccli.org/> (offers classes in person, online, and self-paced on your own!)

Sympto-Pro: <https://symptopro.org/> (also taught at NW Family Services in Portland!)

Marquette Method

Marquette uses a Clearblue Fertility monitor and test sticks to measure hormones every cycle. Optionally, you can also track a descriptive sign to cross-reference the hormone readings.

Especially great for: Post-partum or breastfeeding women, people who like the objectivity of the fertility monitor

May not be good for: those looking to save money. Purchasing a monitor and then monthly test sticks is much more expensive than other methods, and generates plastic waste every month.

<https://www.marquette.edu/nursing/natural-family-planning-model.php>

Vitae Fertility: <https://www.vitae fertility.com/> (offers classes online)

Boston Cross Check

Combine all the signs! This method combines descriptive signs, temperature readings, and a hormone monitor to give you as much data as possible!

Especially great for: those looking for peace of mind with more data, or who have atypical fertility cycles.

May not be good for: those looking to save money (hormone monitors and supplies can be expensive), those who struggle to get accurate descriptive data.

PICK OF THE WEEK

July 24, 2022

SAINT IGNATIUS OF LOYOLA: SOLDIER FOR CHRIST

At the end of this week, we celebrate the feast of St. Ignatius of Loyola, the "Soldier for Christ." While Martin Luther's interior troubles plunged Europe into a maelstrom of controversy, Ignatius of Loyola set out on an extraordinary interior pilgrimage of grace. Taught directly by God, Ignatius offered the Church a new spirituality of devoted service to Christ and founded a religious order dedicated to evangelization, the Jesuits.

Father Nathe and Father Martin each have seven women praying for them, one for each day of the week. Archbishop Etienne will have 21, three for each day of the week. We have need of six more prayer warriors that would like to pray for Archbishop Etienne.
